

WON HINDENBURG CHEERED INTO OFFICE

MARSHAL SWORN IN AS PRESIDENT OF GERMAN REPUBLIC

Communists Deputies Walk Out on Speech of New Executive

Berlin, May 12.—Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, taking office as president of Germany today, solemnly proclaimed his allegiance to the constitution of the republic and dedicated his effort to the whole German nation in its bitter economic struggle.

In his first mention of the republic since a plurality of nearly a million, named him its leader, the veteran warrior in unmistakable terms, pledged his loyalty to the ideals of popular sovereignty.

Minor communist disorders marred his initial appearance in the reichstag to take the presidential oath. There were shouts of "down with the capitalists" and "long live the world revolution" from the left wing.

"Three cheers for Hindenburg," was the Nationalist bloc's response. When Hindenburg began his speech, the communist deputies rose and left the chamber.

But as the old general, his face pale with apparent sincerity, solemnly vowed his allegiance to the Republic and to the causes of the people, shouts of "bravo" broke from the reichstag and at the conclusion of his address the whole assembly tumultuously joined in the cheering.

Hindenburg took the oath of office at noon. Swearing his allegiance to the Weimar constitution, on which the republic was founded, President Hindenburg said:

"I shall devote my strength to the German people, serve for their benefit, avert trouble and practice justice to all."

After taking the oath, Hindenburg spoke with vigor, distinctly and slowly, as if all the world should hear every word. The constitution does not make it mandatory to swear "by God" but Hindenburg prefaced his declaration with that phrase, for he is a deeply religious man.

"The Republican constitution," said President Hindenburg, "promises to work with parliament, but warns against party rule and party strife."

"I have just taken the oath as president," according to the Republican constitution of August, 1919," continued Hindenburg. "The reichstag and the reichs-president belong together; both were elected directly by the German people. On this common basis alone do they derive their authority and power. Only when working together do they form an incorporation of the peoples sovereignty, which is the basis of our whole present constitutional life."

"That is a deep sense of the constitution which I have just solemnly pledged myself by my word as a man."

The president was dressed in a frock coat, top hat and gray trousers. His face was slightly pale and his expression grave. He gave the appearance to onlookers as that of a man of calm dignity. He walked firmly and with military tread as he left the reichstag by the western door in front of which stands an enormous monument to Bismarck to inspect the reichswehr battalion. When he appeared on the porch the thousands of persons gathered nearby set up a thunderous cheering.

The battalion was lined up in parade formation in front of the reichstag prepared for inspection and is a demonstration that the president also is commander-in-chief of the army.

Inauguration day was bright and cheerful. All official Wilhelmstrasse buildings were gay with Republican flags and emblems. Inside in the plenary hall a table stood in front of the president's chair. This too had Republican colors, flowers at the right and left of the table. Behind the presidential chair was the presidential banner, but no other decoration.

Most of the Socialist deputies wore red carnations.

The crowds that surged outside the reichstag numbered in the tens of thousands. Police controlled the situation with military firmness.

Curious Must Spare Col. Coolidge

Plymouth, Vt., May 12.—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the president, must be spared by curiosity seekers and correspondence cranks.

This was the edict today of the Colonel's personal physician, Dr. Cram, who visited the 80 year old man, following his momentary collapse.

Hundreds of thoughtless persons from far and wide have been intruding weekly on the seclusion of the Colonel and letter writers the country over have been swamping him with mail.

Colonel Coolidge has deemed it his duty to greet all who visit the birthplace of the President here and to burn the midnight oil answering the mass of unsolicited correspondence. The father of the President is glad to be of service to those who have honored his boy.

The fact that he is eighty years old, that he has always lived in the quiet and seclusion of the hills and that advanced age has brought on slight hardening of the arteries has made the work of receiving and writing doubly hard for the President's father.

Dr. Cram said today that despite the fainting spell he suffered yesterday the Colonel seemed improved in health today, even better than he has been for some weeks. The physician said the only explanation of the fainting was that possibly the heart skipped a beat. He ordered his patient not to be too active.

Colonel Coolidge was up and about his farm early today making light of his condition.

"I never know how I feel until I see the newspapers," he remarked.

BELIEVE SLAYING IS NEW OUTBREAKING OF OLD LAUNDRY WARS

Silencer Used as Slayers Pistol Man to Death In Brooklyn Club.

New York, May 12.—Police today were seeking gangsters and gunmen who killed Henry Ginsberg, 38, and his partner, Hyman Jacobson, at a smoker in Brooklyn late last night.

The double murder, police believe, was a new outbreak of the wet wash laundry wars. Three uninvited guests walked into the stage, and shot Ginsberg who was seated at a table waiting for the show to start. The shots were not heard as the gun was equipped with a Maxim silencer.

Ginsberg fell dead on the floor, blood pouring from his vest.

Jacobson, who was acting as an usher, ran after the three gunmen. When police arrived they found his body in the driveway of the inn.

AMBASSADOR DENIES NOTE ON SETTLEMENT OF FRENCH DEBT SENT

Herrick Says He Has Not Communicated With Painleve

Paris, May 12.—Myron T. Herrick, ambassador to France, today received American correspondents at the embassy and in a statement to them, denied that a note regarding settlement of the French debt had been transmitted to the Painleve government. He said the next information on the subject would have to come from the state department at Washington.

"First, I wish to say there has been no note," the ambassador said. "There have been communications between the state department and myself regarding debts, but nothing concrete has been done to justify a definite statement. Any information in future on this subject must come from the state department at Washington."

The Herriot government broke the ice regarding debts. And much to their surprise they found popular support for some sort of debt settlement.

Even Louis Loucheur, (former minister of reconstruction), who several years ago prophesied the debt never would be repaid, now is for settlement.

CABINET ADOPTS NOTES ON GERMANY

Paris, May 12.—The Painleve cabinet meetings with President Doumergue, unanimously adopted the text of Foreign Minister Briand's two notes on Germany at noon today.

Premier Painleve told the cabinet the Moroccan situation had been stabilized.

URGE LEGISLATION EXEMPTING AMERICANS LIVING ABROAD FROM PAYING INCOME TAXES

Washington, May 12.—As a boon to American business the world over, the treasury and commerce departments joined today in urging enactment of legislation exempting Americans living abroad from paying domestic income taxes.

Such revision of the present tax laws would aid materially in advancing the frontier lines of American industry in foreign nations, both Secretaries Mellon and Hoover declared.

Returning from a trip to South America, Senator Jones, Republican of Washington, denied he would sponsor legislation in the next session striking out "double taxation" in many countries, Americans must pay both resident and domestic taxes on the same income.

This question has perplexed the treasury for years because of the difficulty of determining the origin of incomes of Americans abroad. Mellon favors a change in the law, believing a workable plan would be sound and wise economically.

Hoover regards the present laws as detrimental to healthy business action which the department of commerce is seeking to extend everywhere.

"The United States is the only important nation which imposes domestic taxation upon the earned income of its citizens, who are residents abroad and engaged in business," said Hoover.

MAY USE DYNAMITE TO RAISE BODIES OF STEAMER VICTIMS

Derricks Fail to Release Bodies in Hull of River Vessel

Memphis, Tenn., May 12.—Dynamite may be used by government engineers today in an attempt to bring to the surface the bodies of the twenty-one victims still imprisoned in the hull of the steamer Norman, which lies at the bottom of the Mississippi, sixteen miles below here.

This method was tentatively decided upon after another fruitless day was spent pounding the submerged boat to pieces with powerful derricks in an effort to release the bodies.

Despite the fact that nearly one quarter of the entire superstructure of the Norman has been torn away, the Father of Waters refused to give up the dead which it has guarded so jealously for three days and nights.

Three heavy anchors, attached to government dredges were nipped against the sides of the Norman continually during the day, but to no avail.

A constant vigil was kept by motor boats on the river, on the lookout for any bodies which might have become loosened from the sunken vessel.

HALF BOOZE FINES MUST GO TO STATE

Columbus, May 12.—One half of the fines collected by mayors for violation of the state prohibition act must be paid into the state treasury, the state supreme court here, held today. The court allowed motion of Attorney General Crabbe for a writ of mandamus to compel Mayor Felton of Grave City, Franklin County, to pay into the state treasury, $4,116.12, representing one half of fines collected in his mayor's court prior to June 17, 1924. Felton contended he had authority to retain the sum involved for payment of expenses of detectives. A like sum had already been paid into the village treasury.

LOSES EFFORT TO COLLECT INSURANCE

Columbus, O., May 12.—Mrs. Maggie L. Gath, Hamilton, today lost her fight to collect $7,850 from the Travelers Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn., for the death of her husband, Charles W. Gath, April 25, 1923, alleged to have been the result of an accident.

The state supreme court affirmed judgment of Butler County courts, dismissing her action on the ground that she had not permitted the insurance company, under a provision of the policy, to exhume the body for an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

PASSENGER HURT AS TRAIN IS DERAILED

Tilton, N. H., May 12.—The Cannon Ball Express, Plymouth to Boston, was derailed two miles south of here today. One passenger was slightly hurt and many others were shaken up.

SPOKEN INSULT SENDS CONVICT BACK TO PENITENTIARY AFTER NINE YEARS FREE

Columbus, May 12.—Back in his cell at the Ohio Penitentiary, nine years after he made his escape, Lewis Basom of Cleveland, who has tasted prosperity and happiness, gave himself over last night to remorse and regret at his mistakes.

It was an insult addressed to his wife when he was intoxicated that brought Basom back to prison to complete two years of a sentence for forgery.

Basom and his wife, whom he married shortly after his escape, lived in Detroit with their four children. Basom earned a good living for his family as a painter and decorator.

Angered because her husband insulted her, Mrs. Basom betrayed to Detroit police the secret she had kept since their marriage.

And Basom was back last night, expecting to be put on his old job in the penitentiary printing office.

"I don't blame Mabel," Basom said of his wife as he repented of the word he spoke to her. "I love her and forgive her, and I hope that she will take care of the children. I can't bear to think of the children separated because I am not there to work for them."

Basom was a trusty when he walked away from the London prison farm. At that time he had but a month or two and his sentence would have ended. He was sentenced from Cleveland in 1915.

"Oh, what a fool I was," Basom said, but he added, "If I had been just a month later I never would have met Mabel."

He said he had tried to play the game straight and had never missed a day's work since he escaped.

POLICE COURT ATTACKED COLLATERALLY BY LAWYER

Suits Filed To Recover Old Fines Imposed On Clients In Municipal Court—Crabbe Says Judge Is De Facto Officer.

First efforts to attack collaterally the validity of Xenia's police court was launched Tuesday afternoon late by Frank L. Johnson, attorney, when he filed three cases in Common Pleas Court to recover back fines imposed on clients in the municipal court.

Attorney Johnson announced that the first three cases are the fore-runners of forty petitions he has prepared to file for clients, seeking collection of money paid the court on old fines, and which rulings of the supreme court and the attorney general now indicate may have been collected illegally because the court was not legally established.

The cases are based on the ruling that police judges must be elected and not appointed, as provided by the city charter and in effect here since January 1, 1918, and that no city can establish a municipal court without a special act of the legislature. These rulings would indicate that the court here was established and operated illegally, which would invalidate all acts of the court in the past.

The filing of the cases by Attorney Johnson came on the heels of an announcement by City Solicitor J. A. Finney, that he had asked for a ruling as to whether re-establishment of a mayor's court here under the commission form of government would be valid, and a ruling of the Attorney General sustaining the decision of the supreme court in holding Xenia's court was illegally operating.

The ruling as contained in dispatches from Columbus however, bore the information that Attorney General Crabbe believed that the police judge has been holding office legally as a de facto officer, which would mean that the court cannot be attacked collaterally, and that all decisions rendered would be upheld. It is this point on which Attorney Johnson is basing his suits filed before the ruling was made public here.

The decision in the cases will probably hinge on whether the court has been serving legally as a de facto officer.

Suits filed by Attorney Johnson against the City of Xenia, are for Eva Leach, Robert Mendenhall and Jennie Hickman. In all cases he alleges the city commission appointed E. D. Smith police judge without authority at law, the appointment not being made to fill a vacancy.

In the Leach case he seeks to recover $165.95, representing the city's share of a fine of $315.95, assessed against the plaintiff April 23, 1923, on a charge of possessing liquor. He alleges in the Mendenhall case that the plaintiff was fined $500, that being the amount of a cash bond which the plaintiff put up and which was confiscated by the court, after he was found guilty. In the Hickman case, the petition says the plaintiff was fined $210.05 on January 14, 1925 and $108.75 on June 5, 1923 and wishes to recover all of the former fine and half of the latter, amounting to $268.75.

Columbus, May 12.—"The office of police judge is an elective office. No power to create such an office or to provide for appointment of a judge thereof, can be exercised by any city in Ohio, being contrary to the provisions of the state constitution."

Thus reads a ruling issued today by Attorney General Crabbe to the state bureau of accounting.

The ruling, it was stated, affects various Ohio municipalities, including Xenia, whose charter adopted in 1917, is said to provide for a commission, of five members, vested, by the charter, with authority to appoint a police judge.

City officials are marking time on the question of whether Xenia has or has not a Municipal Court, constitutionally legal.

Officials are in a quandary on the question, but are now seeking information on the problem from another angle in attempting a solution.

City Solicitor J. A. Finney has written indirectly to the state attorney general through the municipal department in an effort to ascertain whether the old mayor's court, in existence prior to the forming of the city charter, could function legally in the event the present municipal court is declared unconstitutional.

A mayor's court, presided over by a mayor, has the same power as the municipal court and can lawfully determine criminal as well as civil matters. The mayor was formerly elected to serve for two years.

This form of city government was in use in Xenia until the forming of the city charter in 1918.

However, because of the provisions of the new charter that a mayor shall be appointed instead of elected, another hitch arises, smaller in comparison with an municipal court topic since the charter may be amended to correct that situation.

The Supreme Court as well as Attorney General C. C. Crabbe have no authority, by charter or otherwise, to create a court, but no opinion has been rendered on the question of whether an old mayor's court can continue to function in the former's stead.

As the situation now stands, it is believed that Xenia could not have a court established until the next session of the state legislature when a bill could be presented in the legislature as has been done in Dayton, Springfield and other cities.

Pending a decision on that alternative measure officials seek to learn whether an amendment to the charter would clarify the situation.

FACTS

Recently the following dialogue occurred when one business man said to another who employs 10,000 men:

"How's business?"

"Rotten!"

"Closed down?"

"No."

"Running on part time?"

"No."

"What are you doing, storing goods?"

"No. Oh no! It isn't as bad as that—we're just not doing as well as we ought to, or as we expected to."

Not as good as we expected—that about sums up the occasional round-table talk of a slump in business. As a matter of fact, business, on the whole, never was so good as it is today.

Never was the opportunity better to make your business what you want it.

Never were the times better set for progress.

This is what you have to build on:

Retail business in this country in 1924 was the biggest on record.

1925 is running ahead of it, and

April is the peak month so far this year.

The wealth of the world is far greater than in 1913, despite the tremendous waste of the war and the inflated value of the dollar.

Transportation facilities, the most efficient at any time in our history, are being used to their fullest extent. This brings the retailer closer to the market, closer to current prices, and leaves no place for the old-time custom of advance orders.

On this account, merchandising has changed to greater fluidity; quick delivery and quick trades are, and will remain, the order—smaller stocks and a safer foundation.

Wall Street prices are higher today than at any time in 1924.

The agricultural situation, which showed such a material improvement last year, indicates an even higher level of return to the farmer for the next harvest year.

Our foreign trade is the greatest in history, except during the abnormal post-war boom.

In short, considering the country's business balance sheet, the foundation for progress is sound.

ACTION AGAINST VIOLATORS OF LAW ON TRUSTS URGED

Washington, May 12.—At no time since the Sherman Anti-Trust act was enacted by Congress has there been greater need for its vigorous enforcement than now, in the opinion of Augustus T. Seymour, who recently retired as assistant to the Attorney-General in charge of anti-trust proceedings.

"The decrees entered against the great combinations in the past must be translated into practical results," Seymour declared. "The defendants who have been found to have violated the statute must in spirit and practice, conform to the decrees and to the law."

"No new methods of circumventing freedom of commerce must be permitted to obtain a foothold in our industrial life." Mergers in the packing and baking industries among grain elevators or companies engaged in the manufacture of steel, copper, sugar, ice, and other commodities are reported as in progress of formation and are asking for financial support according to Seymour. He mentioned the consolidation of the transportation system as progressing rapidly under the "intelligent supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission."

In some quarters the view of the Administration toward the gigantic rail consolidations is interpreted as meaning that the Coolidge regime will not be marked by any extensive "trust busting" activities although Attorney General Sargent has declared that the policy of the Department of Justice toward trusts remains unchanged.

"I do not mean to say that these combinations are all illegal, on fraud with menace to our economic welfare," Seymour explained. "But is it of the utmost importance in the common interest that every move toward the centralization of power in any industry, or among those dealing in any commodity should be scrutinized with care."

"It is the Government's duty to challenge any attempt to secure an unfair advantage over the public by artificial combination and agreement. "It is no answer that restrictive covenants only prevent injurious competition and result in the maintenance of reasonable prices. What we are afraid of and what we have good reason to fear, is the existence of the power of individuals or small groups to control supply and fix prices."

Seymour said that the initiative in bringing anti-trust cases before the Federal Courts rests upon the Department of Justice. At the present time about thirty-three cases are pending which will require actual trial, and twenty-one

WOMEN GIVEN KEYS OF CITY BY MAYOR

Canton, O., May 12.—Mayor Charles M. Ball has turned over to representatives of the Federation of Ohio Women's clubs the keys of the city of Canton for their 29th annual convention here. They are holding their sessions in the McKinley Memorial M. E. church where Mayor Ball extended them a cordial welcome at their opening session last night.

Mayor Ball spoke on the need for organization and praised the work of the women of Ohio who have accomplished such good results through their several organizations.

Canton, O., May 12.—Mrs. Charles R. Fox, of Cincinnati, president of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs, declared today in her annual report to the twenty-ninth annual convention here that clubwomen of the nation are not becoming addicted to the cigarette habit and scored a cigarette manufacturer who had the temerity to send her a package of cigarettes and ask her to express her opinion of the quality of the fags.

London falls and falls hard, for the hokum of the press agent, and particularly for the hokum of American press agents, who find England a fertile field. After a debauch in the hokum England awakes with a decidedly bad head, denounces all things American and says "Never again," and then falls just as hard again the next time the hokum bait is offered.

ONE WIDE BRACELET REPLACES MANY BANGLES, SAYS PARIS

WE have been accustomed last year to see a woman's arm covered with numerous bracelets which would sometimes reach nearly up to the elbow. It was a sort of competition between elegant women as to who would have more of them, says a late Paris news letter from the Cheney Style Service.

"But fashion has decreed that one single wide bracelet is the smartest (for this season at least) and we see no more exhibitions of various and multicolored bracelets. The so-called 'slave-bracelet'—big gold or platinum rings forming a chain—has been seen much since last Autumn but further variations of the same bracelet have made their appearance and I have seen some very pretty models in the shop-windows of the rue de la Paix. One copied exactly the shape of the gold chain but each ring was made of a narrow row of small diamonds. In other models the big oval rings in gold were alternated with small round ones in jade, coral, agate or onyx.

"The wide diamond bracelet, beautifully worked and forming some complicated design is the one chosen by the elegant woman. It is often in diamonds and some colored stones—for instance in diamonds and sapphires diamonds and rubies diamonds and emeralds etc."

HELD TO GRAND JURY ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Oliver Warwick, colored, Columbus Pike, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of possessing liquor at his arraignment before Justice of the Peace J. E. Jones Tuesday afternoon and was bound over to grand jury under $1,000 bond. In default of bond he is being held in the County Jail.

Authorities say it is Warwick's third offense, constituting a felony with a penitentiary sentence the result of conviction.

Warwick was arrested Monday night by a raiding party headed by Sheriff Morris Sharp on information said to have been furnished by County Detective F. E. Gary. Included in the raiding party was Sheriff Sharp Deputy John Baughn, Patrolman Charles Thompson, Gary and J. Edward Smith alleged detective.

Holding officers declared they confiscated fifteen quarts of corn liquor.

WANT INDICTMENTS IN OIL LEASE CASE

Washington, May 12.—The Fall-Sinclair-Doheny oil leases were again brought to the attention today of federal grand jury here, appearing for the government. Special Counsel Allee Pomerene and District Attorney Peyton Gordon appeared before the jury to ask indictment of ex-Secretary of the Interior F. H. H. Doheny, father and son, for alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States.

Previous indictments against the same defendants were dismissed by the district supreme court because of the presence of unauthorized persons in the grand jury room.

ARE OUR OCEANS DOOMED?

WHAT is to become of our oceans?

This might well be a logical question in our minds when we read in The Nation's Business that "Industry, backed by science, has turned to the ocean for raw material," that "a floating factory has put to sea to draw bromide from sea water that the automobiles of the country may run with less gas."

It has been known for years that there is plenty of wealth in sea water but the job has been to get it out at a price that would be profitable. Not so many years ago a company to get gold out of sea water was actively selling stock. No one could dispute that there is about an ounce of gold in every six tons of sea water but the company paid no one save its promoters. Thus far our chief products from the sea have been fish and salt, pearls and shell, kelp and sponges—valuable, but insignificant in value compared with the things that are there which we haven't touched and most of which we don't know how to touch. Sea water isn't the same in the amount of solid matter it contains, but the make-up of this solid matter is strangely constant. There is less than one percent of saline matter in sea water in the Baltic and it runs up to 5 per cent in the Red Sea. Water from the Gulf of Mexico showed a total salinity of 3.63 per cent and the average salinity of the ocean is 3.5 per cent. Of this saline matter analysis shows among other things approximately 55 per cent chlorine, 17 per cent bromine, 30.8 per cent sodium, a little over one per cent of both potassium and calcium and three-fifth per cent magnesium.

If you want something more dazzling to reckon with, there are gold, silver and radium in the sea, one investigator having found about five milligrams of gold per ton of water. Does all this mean that, when science finds a way to extract all this wealth from the waters of the sea, our oceans are doomed? That the water is to be condensed or solidified and the valuable chemicals and minerals extracted on such a wholesale scale as to exhaust the oceans and leave them barren areas as the destruction of our forests is leaving our lands, or will science find a method of extraction which will not greatly reduce the water volume? Or, perhaps our rains and subterranean water supplies will still be sufficient to maintain our present ocean levels. At any rate none of the present generation can expect to make the trip from New York to Liverpool by motorcar over a dry shell highway—so we should worry.

A scientist claims to have heard an earthworm singing jazz. The reformers will jump at this proof of modern music's low origin.—Defiance, Ohio, Crescent-News. Is it the origin or the result?

To look at what some flappers are wearing nowadays one is almost inclined to believe that the slips and slippers worn are simply her nightie nights.—Newark, Ohio, American-Tribune. Appropriate, since they are out more at night than in the daytime.

RELIGION

When the talk turns on religion I have notions of my own. Have my version of the Bible and the things I think alone. And I've found them satisfying, found them comforting for me. But I'll never lose my temper if you chance to disagree. For religion, as I view it, is a path-way to the goal. And is something to be settled between each man and his soul.

Now I'm not a Roman Catholic, but I wouldn't go so far. As to fling away the friendship of the folks I know who are: I have lived and neighbored with them, come to love them through and through. I've respect and admiration for the kindly things they do. And I've come to the conclusion, though the bigots think it odd, That it makes no difference to me, how a good man worships God.

I know Methodists and Baptists, Lutherans, Scientists and Jews.

Entirely Due To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Forest City, Iowa.—"My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine but it did no more good than if I drank just water.

Once when we had been in town a little book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a fine baby girl eight months old, just the picture of health and I am feeling fine myself. ## Today's Talks

PROPERTY

At some time or other we all want to own something. But if we hold to our sense of proportion we never let this thing of owning something own us.

I was talking with a friend the other evening and we discussed many different people we both knew. And my friend brought up the instance of one who could talk of nothing—no matter where you would be with him—but his business. It dominated and ruled him and made him a slave. I know more people who worry about their property than I do those who get happiness and inspiration from it.

"Well, thank God, I have sold it," remarked a friend to me the other day about a piece of property he owned. I was quite surprised for I had long admired his holding.

"You see it was like this," he explained. "I had nothing but taxes, assessments and worry so long as I held it and so I let it go." I noted his evident relief and smiled to myself as we parted. He was much happier without property.

Russell H. Conwell, the great Philadelphia preacher, doesn't believe in keeping any property. Whenever he gets anything he immediately gives it away. Recently he was given a prize for some public service and he had no sooner gotten it in his possession than the government taxed him on it. But he gave that prize away, too!

Property doesn't tend to make people akin, it all too often does just the opposite. It creates snobs, and often damns otherwise generous natures. Were it not, however, that there are exceptions to this almost universal rule, many of the great blessings of human life would never transpire. The great harm in owning property lies in its worship and the selfishness it harbors. What makes us all happy is what we give away.

REPORT PITIFUL CASES TO SOCIAL SERVICE LEAGUE

During the month of April, Social Service League, met with the usual array of unfortunate and derelicts. Mrs. L. R. Robertson, executive secretary, announced at the meeting of the executive board, at City Hall, Monday night.

One of the most pitiful cases according to Mrs. Robertson was a family of husband and wife and five children under seven years of age. The husband's health has been broken for several years. The wife had gone to the mills to work, each time as soon as the baby was old enough to leave. A few months ago her health began to break, she became discouraged and finally wrote and explained the situation to a brother living in another state who sent money to the family to go to him. The league fitted the family with the necessary clothing for the trip, obtained half fare tickets for them and took them to the night train and saw them off on their journey. The league has spent an average of $25.00 per month for ten months on this family.

Other causes of distress were illness, family too large for income, old age, crippled children, widows, part-time employment, desertion, by husband, death and birth in poverty, low mentality, parental neglect, hobnobbing, unmarried mothers, a man garnished refusal of children to care for parents who were aged and ill, case of starvation of man living alone, epilepsy, ignorance and general shiftlessness.

Twenty-one dollars were spent for groceries for six families, $5 was spent for coal for three families; $39 was spent for milk for eleven families, $7 worth of household equipment was given to nine families, $77 worth of clothing and shoes was given to thirty-eight families; of this amount, $37 worth was given to school children; $6 worth of medicine and medical equipment was given to eight families.

The league co-operated with the following out-of-town organizations: Cincinnati Associated Charities, Zanesville Welfare Organization, Home Rescue Cottage, Cincinnati Central Passenger Association, Springfield Social Service Bureau, Dayton Associated Charities, State Welfare Department of Ohio, and the Juvenile Protective Association of Cincinnati.

Forty-five persons and five organizations made donations to league including food, clothing, shoes, furniture, bedding books and magazines. Trinity M. E. Church women made garments for the league.

THE WORST IS YET TO COME

Things Are Not What They Seem

I REALIZED that things are not always what they seem when I called on Lucy Dater the other day. She was darned Bill's socks, and remarked about her attractive work basket. She smiled and said the work basket had done service as a lamp shade for her, these many years. She had covered it with pretty cretonne and trimmed it with ribbon. "I should think," I commented, "that with all your sewing you never could take time to make such a work basket." "Not a stitch in it," she exclaimed triumphantly. "I just glued the whole thing and I'm crazy about it."

"Who," I asked, admiringly, "gave you that odd little hanging flower pot with the ivy in it?" "That," she laughed, "is my new Florentine flower holder. Yesterday it was a talcum powder can!" "Glue again?" I ventured. "Yes, and a scrap of glazed chintz I had left over from the dining room curtains. I just got a tube of the best quality liquid glue and I'm on a regular gluing orgy."

"You never made that darling tabby cat door stop!" I exclaimed, admiringly. "But I did," she boasted. "It is a quart milk bottle filled with sand for weight, then padded with sheet wadding glued around the bottle to give it shape. The covering is a bit of black broadcloth I had in my scrap bag. Puss's face is painted on."

MODISH MITZI—Mitzi Is So Feminine

By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi's pajamas are as tailored looking as possible. They are very new, too, being made with knee length trousers and a straight night-shirt top. They're made of silk and cotton crepe.

Mitzi's newest underwear, too, is tailored. Very mannish, in fact. All tailored styles are growing more masculine day by day. This set of short trousers and brassiere with nothing between is very smart.

Dresses, too. They are as masculine as possible. That's why Mitzi is so keen about this one with the pleated bodice. Frills are feminine and taboo. The dress is of black satin trimmed with white crepe silk.

Here with her smart dress covered by a mannish tailored topcoat Mitzi sits with Tom, Dick, or who-is-it under the blooming tree and listens sympathetically when he tells her that he does not like women.

BRINGING UP FATHER

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER XL

Mother Pharley's words did not comfort the sobbing Lilah, who, most of all desired to be left alone. Mother Pharley was thinking of the embarrassing task of recalling the invitations to the dinner; of cancelling the arrangements with the Ritz, where the private dining room already was being decorated for the affair. But she did not reproach her daughter.

It was to be suspected that Mother Pharley was secretly pleased, despite the embarrassing situation; for she really did not like Michael Menlow.

The reason was that she had never liked Michael's mother. Lilah straightened up her limp figure and dabbed her eyes with a withered handkerchief.

"Go on to the movies with dad, mother. He need not know yet."

Mrs. Pharley regarded her daughter uncertainly.

"Please do, mother. I'm all right now."

The elder woman drew on her gloves, then bent over and kissed Lilah. "Don't worry about it. He'll show up tomorrow."

At the same hour, before the fireplace in his room at home, Michael was moodily and uncertainly condemning himself. "You're a damned fool," he said over and over.

Katherine Capper got a shock when she came gaily into Lilah's room the next morning and found her friend's reddened face streaked with dried tears.

"Come on, lazy bones, and let's—why Lilah! Whatever is the matter?"

Lilah bowed her head. Katherine sat down on the edge of the bed, caught her friend's head between her two hands and twisted it around to where their eyes could meet. She was frightened. "Lilah! Lilah! What is the matter? Are you ill?"

A solemn shake of the head was her answer.

"Then what's the matter?" Katherine exclaimed impatiently. Lilah shrugged slightly. "Oh, Michael and I have broken off."

"When? Why?" Katherine was excited; Lilah was calmer.

"Yesterday afternoon I accepted an invitation from Abe Malory to go out to the country club and golf. Ina Pasbody went around with us. As we were returning to the clubhouse—Abe and I—Michael, who was with your abrother, saw us... and, Katherine, what do you think?"

Tears appeared in her eyes again. "He cut me! Gave me the curtest of nods. Last night, when I humbled myself and phoned him to come over," he said indifferently that he was "thinking of going out."

Katherine stared at her incredulously.

"Lilah! You don't mean it!" A fierce resolve swept over her. "I'm going to Lonia about this! He'll make Michael realize what a fool he has been!"

"No! no!" Lilah protested weakly. Her mouth was resolute as she said: "Please don't."

Nevertheless Katherine did. She went to her brother's sales-room and wasted no words in acquainting him with the situation.

"It's all so terrible, and without reason."

Alonzo shrugged.

His sister grabbed him. "You have got to do something, Lon! You've simply got to!"

"She shouldn't have been such a fool as to go out with Abe Malory. She knows that Michael doesn't like him. Well, I refuse to shed any tears over it."

Katherine tightened her hold upon his coat sleeve. "Oh, you're hopeless as usual!" He pulled himself free. "You don't know how serious this is," she said, peevishly.

"The quarrel is doing Mike a good service."

"What do you mean?"

"Just what I said," Alonzo returned, laughing softly.

VON HINDENBURG CHEERED INTO OFFICE

MARSHAL SWORN IN AS PRESIDENT OF GERMAN REPUBLIC

Communists Deputies Walk Out on Speech of New Executive

Berlin, May 12.—Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, taking office as president of Germany today, solemnly proclaimed his allegiance to the constitution of the republic and dedicated his effort to the whole German nation in its bitter economic struggle.

In his first mention of the republic since a plurality of nearly a million, named him its leader, the veteran warrior in unmistakable terms, pledged his loyalty to the ideals of popular sovereignty.

Minor communist disorders marred his initial appearance in the reichstag to take the presidential oath. There were shouts of "down with the capitalists" from the left wing.

"Three cheers for Hindenburg," was the Nationalist bloc's response. When Hindenburg began his speech, the communist deputies rose and left the chamber.

But as the old general, his face pale with apparent sincerity, solemnly voiced his allegiance to the Republic and to the causes of the people, shouts of "bravo" broke from the reichstag and the conclusion of his address the whole assemblage tumultuously joined in the cheering.

Hindenburg took the oath of office at noon. Swearing his allegiance to the Weimar constitution, on which the republic was founded, President Hindenburg said:

"I shall devote my strength to the German people, serve for their benefit, avert trouble and practice justice to all."

After taking the oath, Hindenburg spoke with vigor, distinctly and slowly, as if all the world should hear every word. The constitution does not make it mandatory to swear "by God," but Hindenburg professed his declaration with that phrase, for he is a deeply religious man.

"The Republican constitution," said President Hindenburg, "promises to work with parliament, but warns against party rule and party strife."

"I have just taken the oath as president, according to the Republican constitution of August, 1919," continued Hindenburg. "The reichstag and the reichspräsident belong together; both were elected directly by the German people. On this common basis alone do they derive their authority and power. Only when working together do they form an incorporation of the peoples' sovereignty, which is the basis of our whole present constitutional life."

"That is a deep sense of the constitution which I have just solemnly pledged myself by my word as a man."

The president was dressed in a frock coat, top hat and gray trousers. His face was slightly pale and his expression grave. He gave the appearance to onlookers as that of a man of calm dignity. He walked firmly and with military tread as he left the reichstag by the western door in front of which stands an enormous monument to Bismarck to inspect the reichswehr battalion. When he appeared on the porch the thousands of persons gathered nearby set up a thunderous cheering.

The battalion was lined up in parade formation in front of the reichstag prepared for inspection and as a demonstration that the president also is commander-in-chief of the army.

Inauguration day was bright and cheerful. All official Wilhelmstrasse buildings were gay with Republican flags and emblems. Inside in the plenary hall a table stood in front of the president's chair. This too had Republican colors, flowers at the right and left of the table. Behind the presidential chair was the presidential banner, but no other decoration.

Most of the Socialist deputies wore red carnations.

The crowds that surged outside the reichstag numbered in the tens of thousands. Police controlled the situation with military firmness.

When Hindenburg left the chancellor's palace there was no fanfare and blare of trumpets as in the old days of monarchical splendor.

He got into a five-seated automobile as though he were a commoner.

The throng cheered loudly.

The only incident that marked the auto journey was that of a small boy being pulled down from a lamppost where he had climbed to see Hindenburg ride past.

It was a day of glory for thousands of former soldiers, many of whom had fought in the field with Hindenburg. Numerous impoverished veterans had saved their earnings for weeks to get out of pawn the cherished and once resplendent uniform of a general or an admiral to wear today.

Curious Must Spare Col. Coolidge

Plymouth, Vt., May 12.—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the president, must be spared by curiosity seekers and correspondence cranks.

This was the edict today of the Colonel's personal physician, Dr. Cram, who visited the 80 year old man, following his momentary collapse.

Hundreds of thoughtless persons from far and wide have been intruding weekly on the seclusion of the Colonel and letter writers the country over have been swamping him with mail.

Colonel Coolidge has deemed it his duty to greet all who visit the birthplace of the President here and to burn the midnight oil answering the mass of unsolicited correspondence. The father of the President is glad to be of service to those who have honored his boy.

The fact that he is eighty years old, that he has always lived in the quiet and seclusion of the hills and that advanced age has brought on slight hardening of the arteries has made the work of receiving and writing doubly hard for the President's father.

Dr. Cram said today that despite the fainting spell he suffered yesterday the Colonel seemed improved in health today, even better than he has been for some weeks. The physician said the only explanation of the fainting was that possibly the heart skipped a beat. He ordered his patient not to be too active.

Colonel Coolidge was up and about his farm early today making light of his condition.

"I never know how I feel until I see the newspapers," he remarked.

MAY USE DYNAMITE TO RAISE BODIES OF STEAMER VICTIMS

Derricks Fail to Release Bodies in Hull of River Vessel

Memphis, Tenn., May 12.—Dynamite may be used by government engineers today in an attempt to bring to the surface the bodies of the twenty-nine victims still imprisoned in the hull of the steamer Norman, which lies at the bottom of the Mississippi, sixteen miles below here.

This method was tentatively decided upon after another fruitless day was spent pounding the submerged boat to pieces with powerful derricks in an effort to release the bodies.

Despite the fact that nearly one quarter of the entire superstructure of the Norman has been torn away, the Father of Waters refused to give up the dead which it has guarded so jealously for three days and nights.

Three heavy anchors, attached to government dredges were pounded against the sides of the Norman continually during the day, but to no avail.

A constant vigil was kept by motor boats on the river, on the lookout for any bodies which might have become loosened from the sunken vessel.

HALF BOOZE FINES MUST GO TO STATE

Columbus, May 12.—One half of the fines collected by mayors for violation of the state prohibition act must be paid into the state treasury, the state supreme court here, held today. The court allowed motion of Attorney General Crabbe for a writ of mandamus to compel Mayor Felton of Grove City, Franklin County, to pay into the state treasury, $4,116.12, representing one half of fines collected in his mayor's court prior to June 17, 1924. Felton contended he had authority to retain the sum involved for payment of expenses of detectives. A like sum had already been paid into the village treasury.

LOSES EFFORT TO COLLECT INSURANCE

Columbus, O., May 12.—Mrs. Magie L. Gath, Hamilton, today lost her fight to collect $7,850 from the Travelers Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn., for the death of her husband, Charles W. Gath, April 25, 1923, alleged to have been the result of an accident.

The state supreme court affirmed judgment of Butler County courts, dismissing her action on the ground that she had not permitted the insurance company, under a provision of the policy, to exhumate the body for an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

PASSENGER HURT AS TRAIN IS DERAILED

Tilton, N. H., May 12.—The Cannon Ball Express, Plymouth to Boston, was derailed two miles south of here today. One passenger was slightly hurt and many others were shaken up.

The locomotive tender and two passenger coaches left the rails and ran four carlengths over the ties.

The cause of the derailment was believed due to a broken journal.

CITIES MUST NOT PAY MEMBERSHIPS

SPOKEN INSULT SENDS CONVICT BACK TO PENITENTIARY AFTER NINE YEARS FREE

Columbus, May 12.—Back in his cell at the Ohio Penitentiary, nine years after he made his escape, Lewis Basom of Cleveland, who has tasted prosperity and happiness, gave himself over last night to remorse and regret at his mistakes.

It was an insult addressed to his wife when he was intoxicated that brought Basom back to prison to complete two years of a sentence for forgery.

Basom and his wife, whom he married shortly after his escape, lived in Detroit with their four children. Basom earned a good living for his family as a painter and decorator.

Angered because her husband insulted her, Mrs. Basom betrayed to Detroit police the secret she had kept since their marriage.

And Basom was back last night, expecting to be put on his old job in the penitentiary printing office.

"I don't blame Mabel," Basom said of his wife as he repented of the word he spoke to her. "I love her and forgive her, and I hope that she will take care of the children. I can't bear to think of the children separated because I am not there to work for them."

Basom was a trusty when he walked away from the London prison farm. At that time he had but a month or two and his sentence would have ended. He was sentenced from Cleveland in 1915.

"Oh, what a fool I was," Basom said, but he added, "If I had been just a month later I never would have met Mabel."

He said he had tried to play the game straight and had never missed a day's work since he escaped.

BELIEVE SLAYING IS NEW OUTBREAKING OF OLD LAUNDRY WARS

Silencer Used as Slayers Pistol Man to Death In Brooklyn Club

New York, May 12.—Police today were seeking gangsters and gunmen who killed Henry Ginsberg, 38, and his partner, Hyman Jacobson, at a smoker in Brooklyn late last night.

The double murder, police believe, was a new outbreak of the wet wash laundry wars. Three uninvited guests walked into the stage, and shot Ginsberg who was seated at a table waiting for the show to start. The shots were not heard as the gun was equipped with a Maxim silencer. Ginsberg fell dead on the floor, blood pouring from his vest.

Jacobson, who was acting as an usher, ran after the three gunmen. When police arrived they found his body in the driveway of the inn.

AMBASSADOR DENIES NOTE ON SETTLEMENT OF FRENCH DEBT SENT

Herrick Says He Has Not Communicated With Painleve

Paris, May 12.—Myron T. Herrick, ambassador to France, today received American correspondents at the embassy and in a statement to them, denied that a note regarding settlement of the French debt had been transmitted to the Painleve government. He said the next information on the subject would have to come from the state department at Washington.

"First, I wish to say there has been no note," the ambassador said. "There have been communications between the state department and myself regarding debts, but nothing concrete has been done to justify a definite statement. Any information in future on this subject must come from the state department at Washington."

The Herriot government broke the ice regarding debts. And much to their surprise they found popular support for some sort of debt settlement.

Even Louis Loucheur, (former minister of reconstruction), who several years ago prophesied the debt never would be repaid, now is for settlement.

CABINET ADOPTS NOTES ON GERMANY

Paris, May 12.—The Painleve cabinet meetings with President Doumergue, unanimously adopted the text of Foreign Minister Briand's two notes on Germany at noon today.

The first, dealing with alleged German infractions of disarmament provisions, will be handed to the council of ambassadors Friday. The second, the reply to the German security pact proposals, will be sent to the allies immediately.

Premier Painleve told the cabinet the Moroccan situation had been stabilized.

It was announced.

URGE LEGISLATION EXEMPTING AMERICANS LIVING ABROAD FROM PAYING INCOME TAXES

Washington, May 12.—As a boon to American business the world over, the treasury and commerce departments joined today in urging enactment of legislation exempting Americans living abroad from paying domestic income taxes.

Such revision of the present tax laws would aid materially in advancing the frontier lines of American industry in foreign nations, both Secretaries Mellon and Hoover declared.

Returning from a trip to South America, Senator Jones, Republican of Washington, denied he would sponsor legislation in the next session striking out "double taxation" in many countries, Americans must pay both resident and domestic taxes on the same income.

This question has perplexed the treasury for years because of the difficulty of determining the origin of incomes of Americans abroad. Mellon favors a change in the law, believing a workable plan would be sound and wise economically.

Hoover regards the present laws as detrimental to healthy business action which the department of commerce is seeking to extend everywhere.

"The United States is the only important nation which imposes domestic taxation upon the earned income of its citizens, who are residents abroad and engaged in business," said Hoover.

POLICE COURT ATTACKED COLLATERALLY BY LAWYER

Suits Filed To Recover Old Fines Imposed On Clients In Municipal Court—Crabbe Says Judge Is De Facto Officer.

First efforts to attack collaterally the validity of Xenia's police court was launched Tuesday afternoon late by Frank L. Johnson, attorney, when he filed three cases in Common Pleas Court to recover back fines imposed on clients in the municipal court.

Attorney Johnson announced that the first three cases are the fore-runners of forty petitions he has prepared to file for clients, seeking collection of money paid the court on old fines, and which rulings of the supreme court and the attorney general now indicate may have been collected illegally because the court was not legally established.

The cases are based on the ruling that police judges must be elected and not appointed, as provided by the city charter and in effect here since January 1, 1918, and that no city can establish a municipal court without a special act of the legislature. These rulings would indicate that the court here was established and operated illegally, which would invalidate all acts of the court in the past.

The filing of the cases by Attorney Johnson came on the heels of an announcement by City Solicitor J. A. Finney, that he had asked for a ruling as to whether re-establishment of a mayor's court here under the commission form of government would be valid, and a ruling of the Attorney

General sustaining the decision of the supreme court in holding Xenia's court was illegally operating.

The ruling as contained in dispatches from Columbus however, bore the information that Attorney General Crabbe believed that the police judge was holding office legally as a de facto officer, which would mean that the court cannot be attacked collaterally, and that all decisions rendered would be upheld. It is this point on which Attorney Johnson is basing his suits filed before the ruling was made public here. The decision in the cases will probably hinge on whether the court has been serving legally as a de facto officer.

Suits filed by Attorney Johnson against the City of Xenia, are for Eva Leach, Robert Mendenhall and Jennie Hickman. In all cases he alleges the city commission appointed E. D. Smith police judge without authority at law, the appointment not being made to fill a vacancy.

In the Leach case he seeks to recover $165.95, representing the city's share of a fine of $315.95, assessed against the plaintiff April 23, 1923, on a charge of possessing liquor. He alleges in the Mendenhall case that the plaintiff was fined $500, that being the amount of a cash bond which the plaintiff put up and which was confiscated by the court, after he was found guilty. In the Hickman case, the petition says the plaintiff was fined $210.05 on January 14, 1925 and $108.75 on June 5, 1923 and wishes to recover all of the former fine and half of the latter, amounting to $268.75.

Columbus, May 12.—"The office of police judge is an elective office. No power to create such an office or to provide for appointment of a judge thereof, can be exercised by any city in Ohio, being contrary to the provisions of the state constitution."

This reads as a ruling issued today by Attorney General Crabbe to the state bureau of accounting.

The ruling, it was stated, affects various Ohio municipalities, including Xenia, whose charter adopted in 1917, is said to provide for a commission, of five members, vested, by the charter, with authority to appoint a police judge.

City officials are marking time on the question of whether Xenia or has not a Municipal Court, constitutionally legal.

Officials are in a quandary on the question, but are now seeking information on the problem from another angle in attempting a solution.

City Solicitor J. A. Finney has written indirectly to the state attorney general through the municipal department in an effort to ascertain whether the old mayor's court, in existence prior to the forming of the city charter, could function legally in the event the present municipal court is declared unconstitutional.

A mayor's court, presided over by a mayor, has the same power as the municipal court and can lawfully determine criminal as well as civil matters. The mayor was formerly elected to serve for two years.

This form of city government was in use in Xenia until the forming of the city charter in 1918.

However, because of the provisions of the new charter that a mayor shall be appointed instead of elected, another hitch arises, smaller in comparison with the municipal court topic since the charter may be amended to correct that situation.

The Supreme Court as well as Attorney General C. C. Crabbe have no authority, by charter or otherwise, to create a court, but no opinion has been rendered on the question of whether an old mayor's court can continue to function in the former's stead.

As the situation now stands, it is believed that Xenia could not have a court established until the next session of the state legislature when a bill could be presented in the legislature as has been done in Dayton, Springfield and other cities.

Pending a decision on that alternative measure officials seek to learn whether an amendment to the charter would clarify the situation.

FACTS

Recently the following dialogue occurred when one business man said to another who employs 10,000 men:

"How's business?"

"Rotten!"

"Closed down?"

"No."

"Running on part time?"

"No."

"What are you doing, storing goods?"

"No. Oh no! It isn't as bad as that—we're just not doing as well as we ought to, or as we expected to."

Not as good as we expected—that about sums up the occasional round-table talk of a slump in business. As a matter of fact, business, on the whole, never was so good as it is today.

Never was the opportunity better to make your business what you want it.

Never were the times better set for progress.

This is what you have to build on:

Retail business in this country in 1924 was the biggest on record.

1925 is running ahead of it, and

April is the peak month so far this year.

The wealth of the world is far greater than in 1913, despite the tremendous waste of the war and the inflated value of the dollar.

Transportation facilities, the most efficient at any time in our history, are being used to their fullest extent. This brings the retailer closer to the market, closer to current prices, and leaves no place for the old-time custom of advance orders.

On this account, merchandising has changed to greater fluidity; quick delivery and quick trades are, and will remain, the order—smaller stocks and a safer foundation.

Wall Street prices are higher today than at any time in 1924.

The agricultural situation, which showed such a material improvement last year, indicates an even higher level of return to the farmer for the next harvest year.

Our foreign trade is the greatest in history, except during the abnormal post-war boom.

In short, considering the country's business balance sheet, the foundation for progress is sound.

ACTION AGAINST VIOLATORS OF LAW ON TRUSTS URGED

Washington, May 12.—At no time since the Sherman Anti-Trust act was enacted by Congress has there been greater need for its vigorous enforcement than now.

In the opinion of Augustus T. Seymour, who recently retired as assistant to the Attorney-General in charge of anti-trust proceedings.

"The decrees entered against the great combinations in the past must be translated into practical results," Seymour declared. "The defendants who have been found to have violated the statute must in spirit and practice, conform to the decrees and to the law."

"No new methods of circumventing freedom of commerce must be permitted to obtain a foothold in our industrial life."

Mergers in the packing and baking industries among grain elevators or companies engaged in the manufacture of steel, copper, sugar, ice, and other commodities are reported as in progress of formation and are asking for financial support, according to Seymour. He mentioned the consolidation of the transportation system as progressing rapidly under the "intelligent supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission."

In some quarters the view of the Administration toward the gigantic rail consolidations is interpreted as meaning that the Coolidge regime will not be marked by any extensive "trust busting" activities although Attorney General Sargent has declared that the policy of the Department of Justice toward trusts remains unchanged.

"I do not mean to say that these combinations are all illegal, on fraud with menace to our economic welfare," Seymour explained. "But it is of the utmost importance in the common interest that every move toward the centralization of power in any industry, or among those dealing in any commodity should be scrutinized with care."

"It is the Government's duty to challenge any attempt to secure an unfair advantage over the public by artificial combination and agreement."

"It is no answer that restrictive covenants only prevent injurious competition and result in the maintenance of reasonable prices. What we are afraid of and what we have good reason to fear, is the existence of the power of individuals or small groups to control supply and fix prices."

Seymour said that the initiative in bringing anti-trust cases before the Federal Courts rests upon the Department of Justice. At the present time about thirty-three cases are pending which will require actual trial, and twenty-one

London, May 12.—American movie stars always succeed in disturbing serious-minded Englishmen.

No sooner has an American movie star arrived in England with a fanfare of press agency than the guns of the Anti-American quarters are opened upon the United States and all things American.

The English hoi polloi gather by thousands to gaze at the movie stars, the English newspapers fall for the rank press-agent stunts and print columns about the stars, and then comes the counter-blast of anti-Americanism.

Tom Mix is the latest American movie star to arouse criticism here. Tom came to England riding his pony, met the Lord Mayor of London, was affable, gave interviews to the newspapers about his "duty to his public" (and the interviews were printed) and blocked the Strand in front of the Savoy Hotel every time he stirred out. Tom got a lot of cheers and then got a lot of jeers in print.

"What London wants is a Society for Putting Americans in Their Place," said the Daily Graphic, in an article that was not half as genial as Tom Mix had been.

LONDON FALLS.—"It's this Tom Mix business," continued the Daily Graphic. "The dashing cowboy himself is all right but he has brought with him a band of the most accomplished boosters that ever set sail from New York. In spite of past experiences London still falls for these gentlemen."

Lord Burnham's dignified Daily Telegraph also became aroused and devoted nearly a quarter of a column of its precious space to sarcastic reflections upon the visit of Mix.

"Never before have we had it so impressed upon us that a great man had arisen. Never have we understood so clearly what greatness is," said the Daily Telegraph—a really biting comment from that journal, which aims at offending no one.

Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express printed one of Hanneb Swaffer's righteous sermons, wherein he deplored the attention that had been paid to Tom Mix.

Tom Mix left London a hero to the masses, but the object of scorn to the powerful thinkers. The scorn was not directed at Mix personally, but at American methods of conquering the world for his films.

Anglo-American relations will probably survive, and undoubtedly the next American movie star to arrive on these shores will be welcomed by a be-chained and decorated Mayor and besieged by mobs.

London falls and falls hard, for the hokum of the press agent, and particularly for the hokum of American press agents, who find England a fertile field. After a debauch in the hokum England awakes with a decidedly bad head, denounces all things American and says "Never again," and then falls just as hard again the next time the hokum bait is offered.

ONE WIDE BRACELET REPLACES MANY BANGLES, SAYS PARIS

WE have been accustomed last year to see a woman's arm covered with numerous bracelets which would sometimes reach nearly up to the elbow. It was a sort of competition between elegant women as to who would have more of them, says a late Paris news letter from the Cheney Style Service.

"But fashion has decreed that one single wide bracelet is the smartest (for this season at least) and we see no more exhibitions of various and multicolored bracelets."

"The so-called 'slave-bracelet'—a big gold or platinum ring forming a chain—has been seen much since last Autumn but further variations of the same bracelet have made their appearance and I have seen some very pretty models in the shop-windows of the rue de la Paix. One copied exactly the shape of the gold chain but each ring was made of a narrow row of small diamonds. In other models the big oval rings in gold were alternated with small round ones in jade, coral, agate or onyx.

"The wide diamond bracelet, beautifully worked and forming some complicated design is the one chosen by the elegant woman. It is often in diamonds and some colored stones—for instance in diamonds and sapphires diamonds and rubies diamonds and emeralds etc."

HELD TO GRAND JURY ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Oliver Warwick, colored, Columbus Pike, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of possessing liquor at his arraignment before Justice of the Peace J. E. Jones Tuesday afternoon, and was bound over to grand jury under $1,000 bond in default of bond he is being held in the County Jail.

Authorities say it is Warwick's third offense, constituting a felony with a penitentiary sentence the result of conviction.

Warwick was arrested Monday night by a raiding party headed by Sheriff Morris Sharp on information said to have been furnished by County Detective F. E. Gary. Included in the raiding party was Sheriff Sharp Deputy John Baughn, Patrolman Charles Thompson, Gary and J. Edward Smith alleged detective.

Holding officers declared they confiscated fifteen quarts of corn liquor.

WANT INDICTMENTS IN OIL LEASE CASE

Washington, May 12.—The Fall-Sinclair-Doheny oil leases were again brought to the attention today of federal grand jury here. Appearing for the government, Special Counsel Atlee Pomerene and District Attorney Peyton Gordon appeared before the jury to ask indictment of ex-Secretary of the Interior Phil. Harry F. Sinclair and Edward L. Doheny, father and son, for alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States.

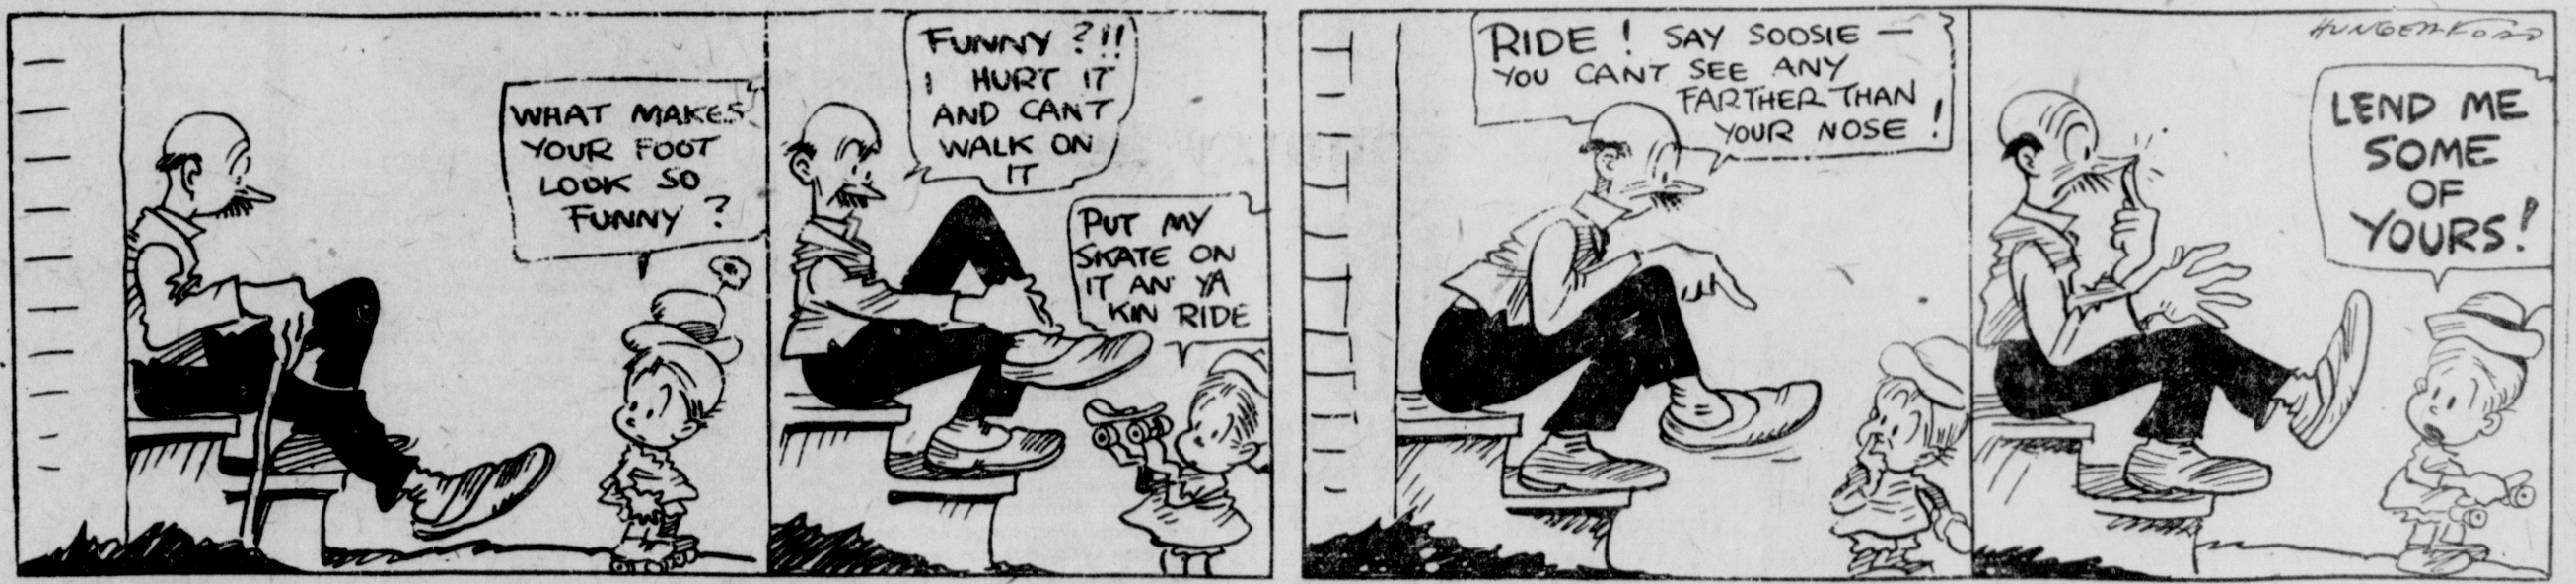

Previous indictments against the same defendants were dismissed by the district supreme court because of the presence of unauthorized persons in the grand jury room.

The annual mite box meeting of the W. H. M. S. of Trinity M. E. Church will be held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock May 15 at the home of Mrs. E. P. Hamlin, 218 West Third Street. Instead of at the home of Mrs. George L. White, as previously arranged.

TO HOLD HEARING Cincinnati, O., May 12.—There will be a public hearing Wednesday afternoon at Woodward High School on the question of allowing public school pupils to devote one hour a week during school hours to receiving religious instruction outside of school.

ARE OUR OCEANS DOOMED?

WHAT is to become of our oceans?

This might well be a logical question in our minds when we read in The Nation's Business that "Industry, backed by science, has turned to the ocean for raw material," that "a floating factory has put to sea to draw bromide from sea water that the automobiles of the country may run with less gas."

It has been known for years that there is plenty of wealth in sea water but the job has been to get it out at a price that would be profitable. Not so many years ago a company to get gold out of sea water was actively selling stock. No one could dispute that there is about an ounce of gold in every six tons of sea water but the company paid no one save its promoters. Thus far our chief products from the sea have been fish and salt, pearls and shell, kelp and sponges—valuable, but insignificant in value compared with the things that are there which we haven't touched and most of which we don't know how to touch. Sea water isn't the same in the amount of solid matter it contains, but the make-up of this solid matter is strangely constant. There is less than one percent of saline matter in sea water in the Baltic and it runs up to 5 per cent in the Red Sea. Water from the Gulf of Mexico showed a total salinity of 3.63 per cent and the average salinity of the ocean is 3.5 per cent. Of this saline matter analysis shows among other things approximately 55 per cent chlorine, 17 per cent bromine, 30.8 per cent sodium, a little over one per cent of both potassium and calcium and three-fifth per cent magnesium.

If you want something more dazzling to reckon with, there are gold, silver and radium in the sea, one investigator having found about five milligrams of gold per ton of water. Does all this mean that, when science finds a way to extract all this wealth from the waters of the sea, our oceans are doomed? That the water is to be condensed or solidified and the valuable chemicals and minerals extracted on such a wholesale scale as to exhaust the oceans and leave them barren areas as the destruction of our forests is leaving our lands, or will science find a method of extraction which will not greatly reduce the water volume? Or, perhaps our rains and subterranean water supplies will still be sufficient to maintain our present ocean levels. At any rate none of the present generation can expect to make the trip from New York to Liverpool by motorcar over a dry shell highway—so we should worry.

A scientist claims to have heard an earthworm singing jazz. The reformers will jump at this proof of modern music's low origin.—Defiance, Ohio, Crescent-News. Is it the origin or the result?

To look at what some flappers are wearing nowadays one is almost inclined to believe that the slips and slippers worn are simply her nightie nights.—Newark, Ohio, American-Tribune. Appropriate, since they are out more at night than in the daytime.

The association of umpires, we are told, is about to pass a resolution of thanks for the man who thought of serving pop in paper drinking cups at the ball games.—Canton, Ohio, News. Now if somebody would nail down the cushions.

RELIGION

When the talk turns on religion I have notions of my own. Have my version of the Bible and the things I think alone. And I've found them satisfying, found them comforting for me. But I'll never lose my temper if you chance to disagree. For religion, as I view it, is a path-way to the goal. And is something to be settled between each man and his soul.

Now I'm not a Roman Catholic, but I wouldn't go so far. As to fling away the friendship of the folks I know who are: I have lived and neighbored with them, come to love them through and through. I've respect and admiration for the kindly things they do. And I've come to the conclusion, though the bigots think it odd, that it makes no difference to me, how a good man worships God.

Whose friendship is a treasure which I wouldn't want to lose. And I honor and respect them, and I wouldn't dare condemn the form of prayer and worship which is comforting to them. So when bigots talk religion, I just settle back and see. The helpful friends and loyal every church has given me.

1905-Twenty Years Ago-1925

A proposition has been received by the city council from H. C. Dean, manager of the Citizens Telephone Company and his wife, who desire to present the city with a fine drinking fountain to be placed in front of the Court House as a memorial to the late A. G. Barber, Mrs. Dean's father. The storm Wednesday blew down an historical pear tree on the farm of J. F. St. John. The tree had not failed in bearing fruit for the past forty years. The class of 1905 will leave a beautiful memorial to the high school this year in the form of a historical panel, entitled, "Men Who Have Made Our Country Great."

Ralph Cleveland, employed with a Columbus interior decorating firm will spend Sunday at his home in this city.

Mrs. V. M.: "How does one make a high, tender meringue for the top of a pie?"

Answer: The egg-white for a meringue should be well chilled. Two egg-whites of course make a larger amount of meringue than one. Beat the two whites stiff, then beat in two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar gradually, and also beat in one-fourth teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Spread this on the cooked pie or pudding and slip into a slow oven to bake for 15 minutes. It should be high and delicately browned.

Miss L. D.: "Please publish a recipe for cheese cake."

Answer: Cheese Cake or "Strudel." Line a plate with ordinary pie pastry. Now put into a mixing bowl, one-half cup of sugar, three slightly beaten eggs, and one cupful of either cream cheese or cottage cheese; beat these three ingredients well together, and add one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice, a pinch of salt, and two and one-half cups of sweet cold milk. Again beat all together, stirring in one-half cupful of dried currants, then turn this mixture into the uncooked pastry shell and slip the plate (or pan) into a moderate oven to bake for 45 minutes. When done it is firm and most delicious.

Mrs. C. F. K.: "Kindly publish recipe for Boston Cream Pie which has plain cake layers with a cream filling and is not a 'pie' at all."

Answer: Boston Cream "Pie" Cream one-third cup of butter with one-third cup of sugar with one cup of granulated sugar; stir in two beaten egg-yolks and add one-half cup of sweet, cold milk alternately with one and three-fourths cups of flour which has been previously sifted with two and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Last, fold in the two egg-whites stiffly whipped and turn the batter into two round, greased layer-cake pans to bake for 25 minutes in a hot oven. Put the layers together with this filling between

Today's Talks

PROPERTY

At some time or other we all want to own something. But if we hold to our sense of proportion we never let this thing of owning something own us.

I was talking with a friend the other evening and we discussed many different people we both knew. And my friend brought up the instance of one who could talk of nothing—no matter where you would be with him—but his business. It dominated and ruled him and made him a slave. I know more people who worry about their property than I do those who get happiness and inspiration from it.

"Well, thank God, I have sold it," remarked a friend to me the other day about a piece of property he owned. I was quite surprised for I had long admired his holding.

"You see it was like this," he explained. "I had nothing but taxes, assessments and worry so long as I held it and so I let it go." I noted his evident relief and smiled to myself as we parted. He was much happier without property.

Russell H. Conwell, the great Philadelphia preacher, doesn't believe in keeping any property. Whenever he gets anything he immediately gives it away. Recently he was given a prize for some public service and he had no sooner gotten it in his possession than the government taxed him on it. But he gave that prize away, too!

Property doesn't tend to make people akin, it all too often does just the opposite. It creates snobs, and often damns otherwise generous natures. Were it not, however, that there are exceptions to this almost universal rule, many of the great blessings of human life would never transpire. The great harm in owning property lies in its worship and the selfishness it harbors. What makes us all happy is what we give away.

REPORT PITIFUL CASES TO SOCIAL SERVICE LEAGUE

During the month of April, Social Service League, met with the usual array of unfortunates and derelicts. Mrs. L. R. Robertson, executive secretary, announced at the meeting of the executive board, at City Hall, Monday night.

One of the most pitiful cases according to Mrs. Robertson was a family of husband and wife and five children under seven years of age. The husband's health has been broken for several years. The wife had gone to the mills to work, each time as soon as the baby was old enough to leave. A few months ago her health began to break, she became discouraged and finally wrote and explained the situation to a brother living in another state who sent money to the family to go to him. The league fitted the family with the necessary clothing for the trip, obtained half fare tickets for them and took them to the night train and saw them off on their journey. The league has spent an average of $25.00 per month for ten months on this family.

Other causes of distress were illness, family too large for income, old age, crippled children, widows, part-time employment, desertion, by husband, death and birth in poverty, low mentality, parental neglect, hobnobbing, unmarried mothers, a man garished refusal of children to care for parents who were aged and ill, case of starvation of man living alone, epilepsy, ignorance and general shiftlessness.

Twenty-one dollars were spent for groceries for six families; $5 was spent for coal for three families; $39 was spent for milk for eleven families; $7 worth of household equipment was given to nine families; $77 worth of clothing and shoes was given to thirty-eight families; of this amount, $37 worth was given to school children; $6 worth of medicine and medical equipment was given to eight families.

The league co-operated with the following out-of-town organizations: Cincinnati Associated Charities, Zanesville Welfare Organization, Home Rescue Cottage, Cincinnati Central Passenger Association, Springfield Social Service Bureau, Dayton Associated Charities, State Welfare Department of Charities and the Juvenile Protective Association of Chicago.

Forty-five persons and five organizations made donations to league including food, clothing, shoes, furniture, bedding, books and magazines. Trinity M. E. Church women made garments for the league.

THE WORST IS YET TO COME

Things Are Not What They Seem

I REALIZED that things are not always what they seem when I called on Lucy Dater the other day. She was darned Bill's socks, and remarked about her attractive work basket. She smiled and said the work basket had done service as a lamp shade for 10, these many years. She had covered it with pretty cretonne and trimmed it with ribbon. "I should think," I commented, "that with all your sewing you never could take time to make such a work basket." "Not a stitch in it," she exclaimed triumphantly. "I just glued the whole thing and I'm crazy about it."

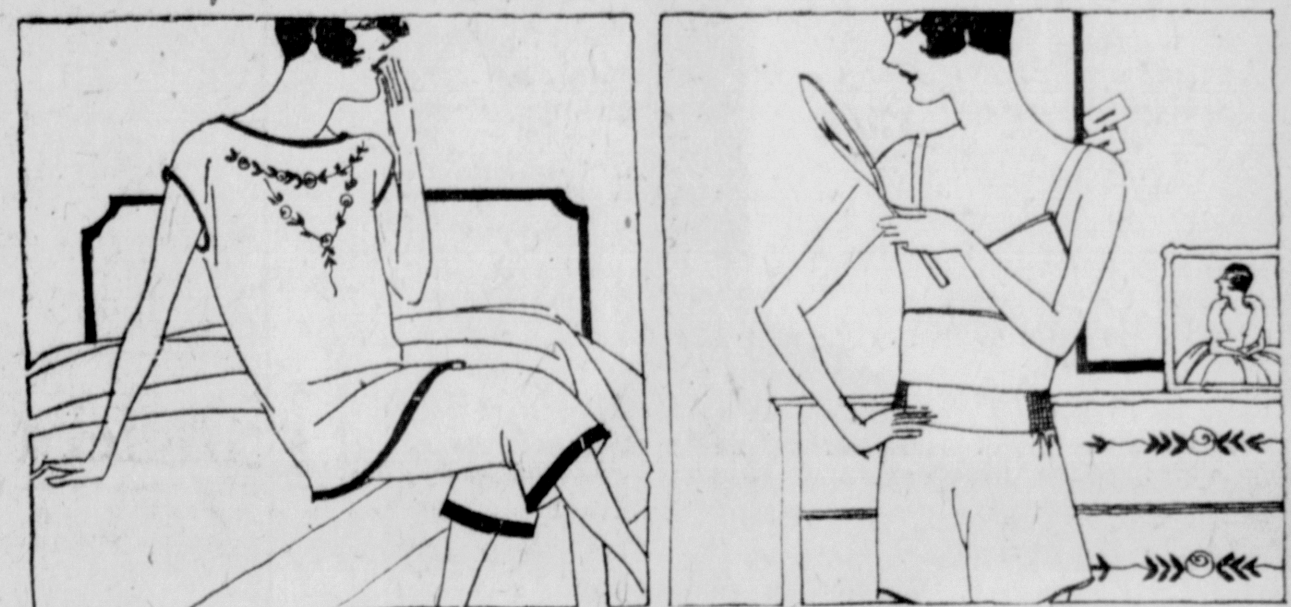

"Who," I asked, admiringly, "gave you that odd little hanging flower pot with the ivy in it?" "That," she laughed, "is my new Florentine flower holder. Yesterday it was a talcum powder can!" "Glue again?" I ventured. "Yes, and a scrap of glazed china I had left over from the dining room curtains. I just got a tube of the best quality liquid glue and I'm on a regular gluing orgy."

"You never made that darling tabby cat door stop!" I exclaimed, admiringly. "But I did," she boasted. "It is a quart milk bottle filled with sand for weight, then padded with sheet wadding glued around the bottle to give it shape. The covering is a bit of black broadcloth I had in my scrap bag. Puss's face is painted on."

I gasped. "What a milk bottle, discarded lamp shade and a talcum powder can made into those nice things!" "Oh, but look at my pickle jar vase," she invited. It was pretty and you'd never guess its origin, but really that was enough. Besides, I was in a hurry to get some liquid glue myself and try my own hand at this new craft of Lucy's.

MODISH MITZI—Mitzi Is So Feminine

By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi's pajamas are as tailored looking as possible. They are very new, too, being made with knee length trousers and a straight night-shirt top. They're made of silk and cotton crepe.

Mitzi's newest underwear, too, is tailored. Very mannish, in fact. All tailored styles are growing more masculine day by day. This set of short trousers and brassiere with nothing between is very smart.

Dresses, too. They are as masculine as possible. That's why Mitzi is so keen about this one with the pleated bosom. Frills are feminine and taboo. The dress is of black satin trimmed with white crepe silk.

Here with her smart dress covered by a mannish tailored topcoat Mitzi sits with Tom, Dick, or who-is-it under the blooming tree and listens sympathetically when he tells her that he does not like women.

BRINGING UP FATHER

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER XL.

Mother Pharley's words did not comfort the sobbing Lilah, who, most of all desired to be left alone. Mother Pharley was thinking of the embarrassing task of recalling the invitations to the dinner; of cancelling the arrangements with the Ritz, where the private dining room already was being decorated for the affair. But she did not reproach her daughter.

It was to be suspected that Mother Pharley was secretly pleased, despite the embarrassing situation; for she really did not like Michael Melrow.

The reason was that she had never liked Michael's mother. Lilah straightened up her limp figure and dabbed her eyes with a withered handkerchief.

"Go on to the movies with dad, mother. He need not know yet."

Mrs. Pharley regarded her daughter uncertainly.

"Please do, mother. I'm all right now."

The elder woman drew on her gloves, then bent over and kissed Lilah. "Don't worry about it. He'll show up tomorrow."

At the same hour, before the fireplace in his room at home, Michael was moodily and uncertainly condemning himself. "You're a damned fool," he said over and over.

Katherine Capper got a shock when she came gaily into Lilah's room the next morning and found her friend's reddened face streaked with dried tears.

"Come on, lazy bones, and let's—why Lilah! Whatever is the matter?"

Lilah bowed her head. Katherine sat down on the edge of the bed, caught her friend's head between her two hands and twisted it around to where their eyes could meet. She was frightened.

"Lilah! Lilah! What is the matter? Are you ill?"

A solemn shake of the head was her answer.

"Then what's the matter?" Katherine exclaimed impatiently. Lilah shrugged slightly. "Oh, Michael and I have broken off."

"When? Why?" Katherine was excited; Lilah was calmer.

"Yesterday afternoon I accepted an invitation from Abe Mal-lory to go out to the country club and golf. Ina Peabody went around with us. As we were returning to the clubhouse—Abe and I—Michael, who was with your abrother, saw us ... and Katherine, what do you think?"

Tears appeared in her eyes again. "He cut me! Gave me the curtest of nods. Last night, when I humbled myself and phoned him to come over," he said indifferently that he was "thinking of going out."

Katherine stared at her incredulously.

"Lilah! You don't mean it!" A fierce resolve swept over her. "I'm going to Lonnie about this! He'll make Michael realize what a fool he has been!"

"No! no!" Lilah protested weakly. Her mouth was resolute as she said: "Please don't."

Nevertheless Katherine did. She went to her brother's safe-room and wasted no words in acquainting him with the situation.

"It's all so terrible, and with-out reason."

Alonzo shrugged.

His sister grabbed him. "You have got to do something, Lon! You've simply got to!"

"She shouldn't have been such a fool as to go out with Abe Mal-lory. She knows that Michael doesn't like him ... Well, I re-fuse to shed any tears over it."

Katherine tightened her hold upon his coat sleeve. "Oh, you're hopeless as usual!" He pulled himself free. "You don't know how serious this is," she said, peevishly.

"The quarrel is doing Mike a good service."

"What do you mean?"

"Just what I said," Alonzo re-turned, laughing softly.
